

Dear Staff of the FCC, The basis of the economy of this country is free trade and competition. The majority of radio stations have become idiotic in their advertisements, the programming has become redundant, and there is no real up to the minute data available for traffic and weather without having to slug through the other garbage that is on radio.

XM radio is a service that I am paying for and I want the full benefit of what it has to offer. Just as satellite tv impacted the ridiculous cable and network television offerings, it is about time that there is an alternative to the absolute garbage that is on radio.

I implore you to leave xm satellite radion alone and let us have what we want to pay for.

Bill Feagin